DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. Claims 19 and 21-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. With regard to claims 19 and 21-22, which recite "one or more computer-readable storage media having stored thereon computer-readable instructions thereon which, when executed by one or more processors, cause the one or more processors to implement the method...". Since as indicated in the specification, paragraphs 0040-0042; computer readable media can be any available media that can be accessed by the computer and includes both volatile and nonvolatile media, removable and non-removable media. By way of example, and not limitation, computer readable media may comprise computer storage media and communication media. Computer storage media includes volatile and nonvolatile removable and non-removable media implemented in any method or technology for storage of information such as computer readable instructions, data structures, program modules or other data. Computer storage media includes, but is not limited to, RAM, ROM, EEPROM, flash memory or other memory technology, CD-ROM, digital versatile disks (DVD) or other optical disk storage, magnetic cassettes, magnetic tape, magnetic disk storage or other magnetic storage devices, or any other medium which can be used to store the desired information and which can be accessed by the computer. Communication media typically embodies computer readable instructions, data structures, program modules or other data in a modulated data signal such as a carrier wave or other transport mechanism and includes any information delivery media. Note that the term "modulated data signal" means a signal that has one or more of its characteristics set or changed in such a manner as to encode information in the signal. By way of example, and not limitation, communication media includes wired media such as a wired network or direct-wired connection, and wireless media such as acoustic, RF, infrared and other wireless media. Combinations of any of the above should also be included within the scope of computer readable media. The claims, therefore, recite nothing but the physical characteristic of a form of energy and as such are directed to non-statutory subject matter. Secondly, since the claims do not recite "A computer readable medium encoded with a computer program..". And, therefore, the claims do not define structural and functional interrelationships between the computer program and the rest of the computer which permit the computer program's functionality to be realized and is thus non statutory.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1-3, 8-15, 23-25, 27-29 appear to be allowed over prior art of records. The various prior art of record does not anticipate or render obviousness a method includes dividing the video data into a plurality of layers, and encoding each of the plurality of layers independently of each other to produce an encoded version of the video data. The encoding further includes dividing a reference frame of the video data into a plurality of layers containing reference sub-frames (where each of the reference sub-frames contains a unique frequency band), generating predicted frames each containing a unique frequency band for each of the plurality layers using the corresponding reference sub-frame containing the unique frequency band to generate predicted sub-frames, and filtering each of the predicted sub-frames based on the unique frequency band of that predicted sub-frame such that frequencies outside of the unique frequency band are eliminated to, generate modified predicted sub-frames at each of the plurality of layers. The method further includes decoding each of the plurality of layers independently of each other to produce a reconstructed version of the video data. As specified in claims 1, 8, 15, 23 and 28.

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
